MISSOULA--

The UM Department of Social Work will offer a course on the rudiments of serving effectively as a member of a board of directors. Entitled "Board of Directors," the course will meet every Wednesday evening from 6:30 to 10:45 June 19-July 14.

Tom Roy, assistant professor of social work, will lead the class. Roy has more than 15 years of professional experience working with boards and committees.

Discussion topics will include the questions: Why have a board of directors? What do directors do? How should staff and boards work together? What are the board's responsibilities? Students will learn how to develop agendas, conduct meetings, prepare budgets and plan fund raisers.

Further information may be obtained by writing to the Department of Social Work, University of Montana, Missoula, MT 59812; 243-5533.
